

BOY RUN OVER BY A FREIGHT

Steve Abbot Was Killed While Playing in the Southeastern Yards.

HE WAS JOLTED FROM A BOX CAR

When Latter Was Struck By a Train Which Was Switching in the Yards.

Steve Abbot, the seven-year-old son of William Abbot, of 112 East Second street, was run over and killed by a Southeastern freight train about 9 o'clock this morning.

The accident occurred in the railroad yards just east of Ewing street and in the rear of the boy's home. He had been playing around some cars standing on the switch and at the time of the accident was hanging to a ladder on the end of a box car. The ladder was on the end of the car toward Ewing street. An engine and a cut of cars came onto the switch from the east and bumping into the box car, the boy was shaken from the ladder. He took one step in an effort to get out of the way but fell and two or three cars passed over his body before the crew knew of the accident and stopped the train. Neighbors and people who were near by at the time hurried to the scene of the accident, and the child, fearfully crushed and mangled, was carried unconscious to his home near by. He died in about fifteen minutes, before a physician who had been summoned, could render any aid.

The boy's mother who, hearing of the accident, hurried to the railroad within a few moments after it occurred, was almost overcome by the sight of her crushed child. But a short time before she had called him in from the railroad yards but a little later he returned there to play.

One of the few who saw him run over was his brother, Fred, a newsboy. He was near the B. & O. and seeing Steve hanging to the car had called to him to get off, but the little fellow in his play was heedless of the warning and still swung to the car. Fred started toward him but before he had gone far the train struck the car. Just before the cars came together the attention of Ray Gilbert, who was between the Southeastern and the B. & O., was attracted to the boy's perilous position and he shouted a warning to Arch Downs, a brakeman who had jumped from the approaching cut of cars to wave some signal to the engineer. The noise of the trains prevented Downs from understanding Gilbert's words immediately but as soon as he did he signaled for the train to stop.

The boy being on the far end of the car there was no chance for the train crew to have seen him in time to prevent the accident.

The ball given last night by the Eagle's lodge, was enjoyed by a large crowd. The music was furnished by Barkman's orchestra. During the evening refreshments were served.

The Loyal Devore Society of the Christian church, will meet tonight with Mrs. Noble Moore, 115 West Second street.

DIED.

WHEELER.—Jason Wheeler, after an illness of two years with tuberculosis, died at 10 o'clock Monday night at his home near Surprise. He was 31 years old and was born and had always lived in the neighborhood in which he died. He left a wife, three small children, a mother and five sisters. He was a member of the United Brethren church at Acme and the funeral services will be held there Wednesday forenoon. Burial at the cemetery there.

The Burrell Case.

A special from Muskogee to the Kansas City Journal regarding the Burrell case, says:

Armed with a requisition from Governor Creece, Attorney McAdams of Oklahoma City, representing the state of Indiana and Jack Spain, sheriff of Oklahoma county, arrived here today to take into custody Hugh Burrell, former president of the People's State bank of Brownstown, Ind. who is wanted on a charge of embezzling $60,000.

Burrell claims an attempt was made to kidnap him but that he was advised by a friend and foiled the effort. Habeas corpus proceedings were started by Burrell today and the case is set for argument Friday. In the meantime Burrell technically is a prisoner of Sheriff Wisener of Muskogee county.

Yesterday the supreme court decided the case in his favor and today he was arrested on another warrant. Burrell is more than 70 years old and is highly connected in Muskogee.

Latest Message.

The latest news from Oklahoma in the Burrell case is that the hearing of his appeal has been changed from April 22 to May 2. The news was received at Brownstown today. John R. Tindler who was preparing to leave for Oklahoma City, has postponed his departure.

Preparing For G. A. R.

A letter from Richmond says that city is planning the greatest feature parade ever undertaken in the state for the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic and Sons of Veterans to be held there May 17, 18 and 19. Two thousand school children will be banded on stands and dressed in capes and caps of the national colors so as to present the initials of G. A. R. against a field of white. It is planned to raise $6,000 and every penny will be spent on the encampment.

The outlay of funds will be lavish but spent with a keen discrimination, so there will be no waste. The badges to be given the delegates will cost $700. An equal amount is to be spent on the street decorations and the electric wiring and arrangement of elaborate spectacles will add $600. The cost of the music is placed at $1,000. The official souvenir program will cost $250.

Entertained at Dinner.

Miss Mary Copeland and Walter Montgomery of Redding township, were pleasantly entertained Sunday with an Easter dinner, given by Miss Dora Isaacs at her home near Surprise. Quite a number of other young people were present and enjoyed the good time afforded by Miss Dora's hospitality.

Second Class a Success.

Prof. Moulton gave the first lecture to a large class last night. On Thursday from 7 to 8 o'clock he will review the lecture of last night for the new members who desire to join the class. Persons may enroll at 7 or 8 o'clock that evening but not later.

GAS RANGE DEMONSTRATION

Seymour Public Service Company Arranges to Have an Exhibition.

On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, April 25, 26, 27 and 28, the Seymour Public Service Co. has arranged to have Mr. Chas. E. Draper, one of the best informed men in the country on gas ranges, come to this city and give a series of free demonstrations on how to use a gas range. He will explain the methods of cooking on a gas range so as to get the best results with the most economical expenditure of gas. An invitation will be extended to the ladies who attend to ask any questions which they wish and he will give personal instruction in reply to these questions without any charge or without the inquiring person assuming any obligation. All the demonstrations will be free as the Seymour Public Service Co. wishes to give its patrons the best information possible as to the value and use of gas for cooking purposes. The company is planning also to give away two gas ranges, one water heater and 5,000 feet of gas in addition to the free demonstrations which they will make. Every lady in Seymour is invited to attend one or more days during the demonstration.

WHAT IS THE COLOR

Of Your Gasoline and Coal Oil Cans.

One of the laws enacted by the last legislature is of interest to every person who buys or sells coal oil or gasoline. If you have an old red coal oil can throw it away or paint it some other color and if you have a gasoline can, give it a red coat.

The law says:

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, that it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to keep for sale or for use or to sell any Gasoline, Benzine or Naphtha in any barrel, cask, package or can, unless the same is painted red, or to keep for sale or use or to sell any Kerosene in any barrel, cask, package or can if the same is painted red; Provided, however, that in case of Gasoline, Benzine or Naphtha being sold in bottles for cleaning and similar purposes, it shall be deemed sufficient if the contents are so designated by a red label securely pasted or attached thereto, bearing the words "gasoline," "benzine," or "naphtha."

All barrels, casks, packages or cans containing gasoline shall have plainly printed thereon in black letters not less than one inch in height the word "gasoline," provided, however, that the provision of this act shall not apply to any barrel, cask, package, can or other receptacle, the capacity of which is over fifty (50) gallons.

Section 2.—Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine of not less than five nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed ninety days, or both.

Promotion.

Mike Glover of Bedford, who for years was passenger conductor on the Southeastern line, has been appointed superintendent of the road. Mr. Glover is well known in Seymour.

THE ROBBERY OF TWO MORE STORES

Burglars Entered Establishments of Ed McElwain and James Russell Monday Night.

MONEY IN THE CASH REGISTERS

Was Stolen.—Amounted to About Thirty Dollars.—No Good Clew To Robbers.

Two more business houses were broken into last night and about $30 secured by the robbers.

Ed McElwain who conducts a cigar store on Indianapolis Avenue between Second street and St. Louis Avenue, was the unwilling contributor of $25 to the loot and James Russell, proprietor of the East Second street meat market, furnished the remainder of the sum realized by the burglars for their night's work.

At both places entry to the stores was secured by breaking back windows. At McElwain's, a door between the back room and the store was pried open with a poker. The money was taken from the cash register. No cigars, tobacco or other goods were taken. The robbery occurred some time after midnight, Mr. McElwain not having left the place until nearly 12 o'clock. The burglars in breaking out the glass evidently caught the pieces as they fell to prevent noise and had stacked them up on the window sill. After breaking the glass, they removed a long stick which was used in place of a lock.

None of the stock at Russell's place was disturbed. The cash, nearly $5, was taken from the register. It consisted mostly of small change. No one was disturbed by the robberies and the fact that they had been committed, was not known until this morning.

No very strong clew as to the guilty parties can be found. The officers, however are looking for three strangers who have been around the city for a day or two. They were seen on the streets together at a late hour last night.

The frequency with which robberies have been committed in the business part of the city recently, lead many to believe that local talent is responsible for them. It is up to the night police to redouble their vigilance and catch the robbers.

Suicide Attempted.

In a moment of despondency following a quarrel with a relative, Elsie Weisner, a 19 year old girl, attempted suicide Monday evening at the home of her uncle, Mr. Hunt, of East Fifth street. She took a dose of carbolic acid but fortunately it was diluted with water and the effects were not very serious. After her recovery she expressed deep regret for her rash act. Her home is at Peters' Switch but she has been staying here for some time.

Richard Temple has had plans drawn for a handsome new residence to be erected in the Read-Jordan addition.

MONSTER ENGINES.

Taken Through Seymour on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Monday two very large engines passed through Seymour going south on the Pennsylvania. They were from the Baldwin works at Philadelphia and were being taken to Arizona for use on the new Arizona Eastern. They were in charge of a traveling engineer of the company. They were of such unusual weight and size that they were held in Columbus for several days until it could be determined whether they could be taken over the bridge at Louisville. The Columbus Republican says:

The engines were held here because it was claimed they were overweight and could not be taken over the Pennsylvania company's bridge at Louisville. They were held because of this claim and since Thursday morning there has been no end of telegraphing of orders and counter orders about the two big engines and it was not until this morning that a permit was issued for the engines to proceed on their way. At first it was proposed to send the engines back to Richmond and start them over another line, but there was no turn table under on which the engines could be turned and Mr. Franklin would not consent for them to run backwards.

The new engines are of the consolidated build and are fired with oil. The engine and tank weighs one hundred and forty tons and when the tanks are filled they weigh over two hundred tons. The tank holds seven thousand gallons of water and three thousand gallons of oil. The latter is conveyed to the fire box by means of pipes and steam pressure. Mr. Franklin said that the Arizona Eastern had an order for three hundred engines with this company and that these were among the smallest of the lot. Mr. Franklin has been on the road with the engines since the first of April and does not hope to reach his destination before the middle of May. He is fixed up as snug as a bug in a rug in one of the engines where he sleeps and cooks his meals. Before the engines are taken over the bridge at Louisville they will be uncoupled from their tanks. The engines were taken from here in a through freight train, manned by Engineer Shaw and Conductor McClain, who had orders not to run over eight miles an hour between here and Louisville.

Improving From Burns.

Robert Mullis, son of Mrs. Robert Mullis, of Tunnelton, was badly burned Friday evening by over turning a kerosene lamp during an attack of epilepsy. He is some better and may recover, though the burns are of a horrible nature and he suffers intense pain. The flesh of one arm was cooked and the finger nails of the hand were burned away. The eyes are burned so badly that he is unable to see. After the upsetting of the lamp, the smoke and flames were noticed by a neighbor, Mrs. Cooper, who ran to the home and extinguished the blaze with water. Mullis, whose clothing was almost burned off his body, ran to the home of a neighbor and jumped into a bed, rolling about to smother out the fire. He is 17 years old and some time ago was charged with slashing another boy with a knife and an effort was made to have him admitted to the epileptic village at New Castle. The boy is known to some people in Seymour, having visited relatives here.

The Indiana Study Club will meet with Mrs. Jeanette Gault Friday afternoon. Laura Cox, Sec'y.

PRELIMINARY ARRANGEMENTS

Made For Meetings of Jackson County Farmers' Institute.

A preliminary meeting for the year, of the officers and district chairmen for the county of the Jackson County Farmers' Institute, was held at Brownstown Saturday. Institutes will be held the coming year at Seymour, Brownstown, Medora, Kurtz and Crothersville the same as last year. A list of subjects was selected Saturday and will be forwarded to Purdue. From this list selections will be made for the speakers who will be assigned to Jackson county. Those who attended Saturday's conference were Chairman T. E. Miller and Secretary George Velslage of the Institutes and the Chairman T. J. Holmes of Crothersville, J. A. Wayman, jr. of Brownstown, J. M. Johnson, of Washington Township, C. A. Wiseman of Crothersville, and Edward Schneck of Jackson Township.

Tonight.

It should not be necessary to further remind the citizens of Seymour that tonight, Mr. S. A. Baldus, managing editor of the Extensive Magazine, (Chicago), will lecture under the auspices of Seymour Council of K. of C. at Society Hall at 8 p. m. The subject is "The Seven Ages," one in which every man and woman, married or unmarried, will be interested.

Children courtship, love, marriage and divorce and the divorce in the home, will receive due consideration.

The lecture is plentifully sprinkled with humor; the lights and the shades of each of the seven ages of man and woman are reproduced with telling effect.

Of Mr. Baldus, it has been said that he is that rare phenomenon of our day—a man with a message.

He carries his editorial style, which is distinctive, vivid and virile, into his lectures. He has never learned the trick of superfluous words, his meaning is always clear.

It is certain that those who will hear Mr. Baldus tonight, will have something to talk about for days afterwards. Admission 25 cents.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our sincere thanks, to the friends and neighbors, to Rev. J. Short and the choir, to F. J. WILL STAMP OUT THE EVIL

Word From French Lick Has It That Big Hotel Proprietor Will Lend His Potent Influence Toward Relieving the Valley of the Reproach Under Which It Has Long Rested Owing to Open Gambling.

French Lick, Ind., April 18.—Imperturbed, it is said, by his family to put a stop to it, and tired of the notoriety attending gambling at this place, Thomas Taggart has notified citizens here that he will lend his efforts to stamp out the evil, and the better class of citizens believe that the end of the sport here is near at hand. It is said by Taggart that there has been no gambling at the French Lick casino since the raid by the state three years ago, but it has been going on openly ever since at the Brown hotel, just across the street from the French Lick hotel. Whether Taggart proposes to have the Brown hotel closed is not known, but those who have received assurances that gambling will be discontinued permanently feel sure that Taggart's will will prove potent and that they are to be rid of the evil. Although French Lick township, Orange county, in which French Lick and West Baden are located, voted "wet" on April 1, it is destined to be "dry," as the county commissioners have held that a remonstrance against saloons in the township filed the day before the election is a valid majority remonstrance.

IT WAS LOADED

Tragic Story of Combination of Two
Boys and a Gun.

Marion, Ind., April 18.—"Don't point that gun at me; it might be loaded," cautioned Edward Barton, aged fifteen, when his cousin, Harvey Cook, aged sixteen, playfully leveled a shot-gun at him. Cook then lowered the weapon and, resting it on the floor as he still held it, young Barton attempted to break the gun to see if it really was loaded.

The discharge followed, the entire charge striking Cook in the neck, killing him instantly. Barton had accidentally killed his cousin after having warned him of the possible danger.

Design 100, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

An ideal floor arrangement for a small home comprising all the conveniences to be desired. The living room is as large as is found in houses costing many times more than this. The dining room is made very attractive by a Dutch window, glazed with stained glass. The kitchen is suitably provided with cupboards, molding table and flour bins. The entry provides space for a refrigerator. There are two liberal chambers and a bath in the second story. The first story is finished in birch, the second in pine to paint with birch floors. Size 24 by 24 feet. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $1,500.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications for design No. 100 for $10.

COMPLICATIONS ARE ARISING ON BORDER

Mexicans Disregarded Uncle
Sam's Stern Injunction.

Washington, April 18.—This government is confronted by the most serious question that yet has arisen between the two countries as a result of the battle waged at Agua Prieta by Mexican troops. The formal warning of the United States against the further jeopardizing of American lives on this side of the border line was disregarded in Monday's engagement, and bullets from Mexican rifles again entered the town of Douglas, Ariz., wounding several Americans.

The United States government now finds itself in this position: It has served notice on Mexico that the occurrences of April 13 at Douglas, in which two Americans lost their lives and eleven were wounded, must not be repeated. The Mexican government has not yet replied to these forceful representations, and in the meantime American lives on American soil have again been jeopardized by the firing of Mexican rifles.

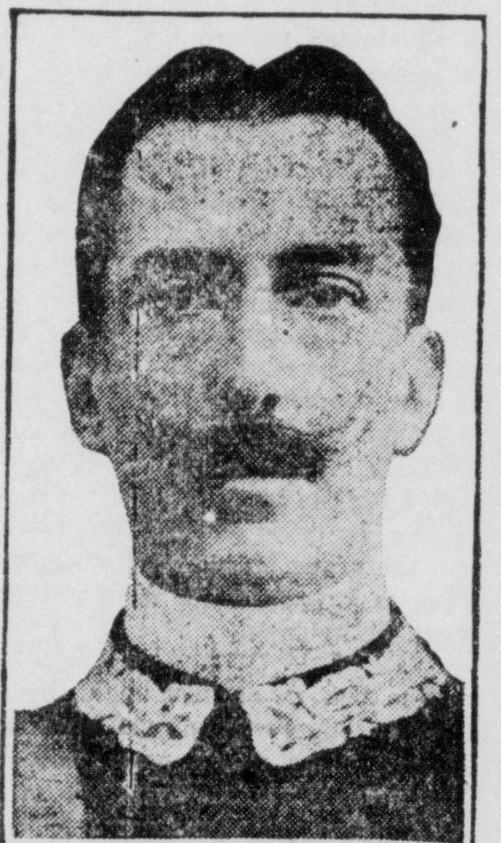

Mr. Taft and his advisers have practically exhausted their powers in handling the situation, and if anything is to be done to back up the warning of the United States, it will have to come from congress. The president's advisers have made it plain that Mr. Taft will not order a single American soldier across the border unless he is directed to do so by congress.

That President Taft fears that it may be necessary for him to order American troops across the border and that he is apprehensive that it may be necessary ultimately for the United States to intervene in revolution-ridden Mexico, is indicated in a telegram sent by the president to Governor Sloan of Arizona in reply to a telegram from the governor, who wired that five persons in Douglas were wounded during the fight, and asked if anything could be done to relieve the situation.

The president in reply said that the situation might justify him in ordering troops across the border and attempting to stop the fighting, or to fire upon both combatants from the American side, but if he took this step he must face the possibility of resistance and greater bloodshed and also the danger of having our motives misconstrued and misrepresented and of inflaming the Mexican people against many thousands of Americans now in

COUNT OF TURIN

Narrowly Escaped Death

Rome, April 18.—The Count of Turin, cousin of the king, had a narrow escape from death while taking a bath in the Pitti palace. The gas tube of the heating apparatus in the room exploded and knocked a hole in the ceiling of the bathroom. A heavy piece of the plastering fell from a point just above where the count was standing. He was struck by fragments and slightly hurt.

Mexico and jeopardizing their lives and property.

"The pressure for general intervention under such conditions," he said, "might not be practical to resist. It is impossible to foresee or reckon the consequences of such a course, and we must use the greatest self-restraint to avoid it. Pending my urgent representations to the Mexican government, I cannot, therefore, order the troops at Douglas to cross the border."

He Got an Early Answer.

Durham, N. C., April 18.—Concluding a sermon on Job's question, "If a man die shall he live again?" and calling his congregation to prayer, the Rev. M. M. McFarland collapsed in his pulpit in Mebane, thirty miles west of Durham. The mumbling prayer attracted his wife's attention and she rushed to the pulpit to find him paralyzed. He died shortly after.

HEAVY LOSSES ON BOTH SIDES

Battle of Agua Prieta a Determined Conflict.

AMERICAN TOWN IS INVADED

Mexican Rebels on the Run Cross Over the Line Into Douglas, Bearing Arms, and Parade the Streets—During the Progress of the Battle Bullets Swept Over the Border and Several Americans Were Wounded.

El Paso, Tex., April 18.—Twenty-six hundred insurgents are said to have come within twelve miles of Juarez, ready to attack at once. There is hardly any doubt that the insurgents have arrived.

Douglas, Ariz., April 18.—The federals have captured the first rebel line and are continuing their advance on Agua Prieta. Antonio Garcia, one of the rebel leaders, surrendered to United States troops. "Red" Lopez and many rebels under arms are now parading the streets of Douglas. The Mexican consul protested that they should be arrested.

It is believed the rebels got hold of mesquite, with the usual result. They are sneaking across the line in large numbers and are mingling with their sympathizers on this side of the line. American troops are massing in Fourth street, prepared to patrol the boundary line. Governor Sloan has urged Colonel Shunk to prevent violation of the neutrality law involved in the rebels crossing the line armed.

The battle opened at 6 o'clock Monday morning and raged practically all day. The rebels held their position stubbornly and captured two federal rapid fire guns, but the federal force was too strong for them. The loss of life has been heavy, the federal loss being estimated at from 100 to 200. The rebel commander at Agua Prieta estimates the federal dead at seventy-five. The rebel losses are twenty dead and fifty wounded.

Disregarded Uncle Sam's Warning.

Federal troops disregarded the United States warning and their promises not to fire into the United States, but in fighting from low ground they elevated their aim and bullets carried far into Douglas. The whole section of the city between Fifth street and the line was deserted. The American custom house was under heavy fire and the citizens sheltered there took refuge in a deep ditch.

Jack Hamilton, fourteen years old, standing on a building on the corner of Sixth street and Railroad avenue, half a mile north of the international line, was struck by a spent Mauser bullet. The boy gamely got up, pulled the bullet out of his breast and put it in his pocket for a souvenir.

Oscar K. Goll of Tombstone, a newspaper man, was shot in the side of the head on Fourth street. The bullet cut a long gash in the scalp along the side of his head. Bullets struck residences on Fifth and Eighth streets. The families moved out. Colonel Shunk, commanding the American troops, said he could not do anything about it, having no orders from Washington. Governor Sloan of Arizona was on the international line during the fighting. He got the cavalry to drive back two thousand American and Mexican men, women and children, including many mothers with babies in go-carts, from the danger zone. The second street school in Douglas was under fire all morning. No attempt was made to hold school there or at the Seventh street school. Some cavalry horses bolted and ran across the line into Agua Prieta. Several of the American troops were struck by flying bullets.

Red Cross wagons were not allowed to cross the line, by order of the American commander. American soldiers and troops have strict orders not to cross into Mexican territory on any account. Several wounded have straggled across the line and are receiving attention at the Red Cross hospital. Red Cross volunteers crossed the border and went upon the field. Every surgeon in Douglas and many from Bisbee were brought to the line to attend the wounded.

Helen Gould Will Not Be Disturbed.

Indianapolis, April 18.—With a delegation of more than sixty New York visitors, Miss Helen Gould arrived in Indianapolis today to attend the biennial national convention of the Young Women's Christian association, which opens at the First Baptist church tomorrow. Local and national Y. W. C. A. officials who are in charge of arrangements for the convention assured Miss Gould's representative that adequate protection from camera fiends and beggars would be given her while in Indianapolis before she would attend the meeting. Applications by beggars and philanthropists to obtain audience with Miss Gould have been made already, it is said, and all have been denied, and a cordon of Y. W. C. A. attendants will guard Miss Gould during her stay here.

Mrs. W. E. Olney of Oakland, Cal., who it is thought will be elected to the presidency of the convention without opposition, came with the California contingent.

DEFENDANT HAS NO WITNESSES

Heindmann's Lawyers Admit a Hopeless Case.

ON TRIAL FOR CRUEL CRIME

German Florist, Charged With Atrocious Murder of Little Marie Smith at Asbury Park, Faces Court in Tears, His Attorneys Interested Only in Seeing That He Secures a Fair Trial.

Freehold, N. J., April 18.—Counsel for Frank E. Heidemann, the German florist, twenty-seven years old, whose trial for the murder of ten-year-old Marie Smith at Asbury Park Nov. 9 last, is in progress asked very few questions of the witnesses for the state, indicating that the lawyers appointed by the court consider the fight a hopeless one. When the indictment was read by the prosecutor, charging Heidemann with slaying the child, Heidemann covered his face with his handkerchief and both hands and wept audibly.

The detective who for four months was the companion of Heidemann, seeking to secure a confession, was Charles Neumeister, an educated German, imported for the job. He made Heidemann's acquaintance soon after he arrived in New York and remained with him day and night thereafter until his arrest at Red Bank March 15, after Heidemann had told of the crimes he had committed, including the murder of Marie Smith. This confession was taken down stenographically by a detective on the opposite side of a thin partition.

Four physicians told of the condition of the body, declaring that either strangulation or a fractured skull from a blow in the back of the head might have caused death. All the physicians agreed that an attempt at criminal assault had been made. Counsel for the defense will offer no witnesses, it being understood that they consider it their duty only to see that Heidemann has a fair trial.

HELD RESPONSIBLE

Proprietors of Garment Company Blamed For Awful New York Fire.

New York, April 18.—The coroner's jury that has been investigating the Asch building fire, in which more than 140 persons were killed, returned a verdict holding Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, proprietors of the Triangle Waist company, in whose factory the fire occurred, responsible.

"We are convinced by the evidence," says the verdict, "that, not only had no attention been given to, and no means provided for, the hasty exit of those employed in said premises, but on the contrary their safety had been utterly disregarded."

The jury supplemented its verdict with ten recommendations for fire prevention.

THE DANGER MARK

Ohio River Is Once More at Flood Stage and Rising.

Paducah, Ky., April 18.—The Ohio river has reached the danger mark of forty feet here. This stage does no damage in Paducah, but the forty-foot stage puts the river over the banks in southern Illinois and in the lowlands of Kentucky. Several thousand acres of wheat are a sea of water in Illinois, and if the river remains high for a few days the crop will be heavily damaged. Boats are unable to make landings at many places between Paducah and Evansville.

JIM CROW LAWS SAID TO HAVE BEEN BROKEN

Mrs. Booker T. Washington Reported to Be Offender.

Memphis, Tenn., April 18.—As a result of charges emanating here in railroad circles that the "Jim Crow" laws of Texas, Arkansas and Tennessee had been violated, officials of the Cotton Belt road and Pullman company may be prosecuted. The wife of Booker Washington, the noted negro educator, alighted from a Pullman Monday. Charges are made that she had been smuggled through from Paris, Tex., in the drawing room, and as there were white passengers in the same car, the "Jim Crow" laws in three states were violated. Secrecy was maintained and Mrs. Washington only left the train long after its arrival. Her efforts to get a taxicab failed, each white chauffeur refusing to drive her.

HAS NO WORD

General Carter Says Nothing Has Come to Indicate Early Action.

San Antonio, Tex., April 18.—Despite the report of the repetition of conditions contingent to the fighting at Agua Prieta, such as President Taft had warned the government of Mexico against a few days ago, there was no word at the camp of the mobilized division of troops at Fort Sam Houston reservation to indicate the imminence of any movement southward. General Carter stated that he had received no orders from Washington and there was no break in the routine of camp.

Three Caught at Crossing.

Elizabeth, N. J., April 18.—Three persons were killed by the Lakewood flyer at the Long Branch crossing of the Central railroad at Elizabeth avenue Sunday night. The victims were E. S. Saunders, baggage-master of a Perth Amboy local, Mrs. Hannah Cosgrove and her daughter, Mrs. Stone of Belford. The baggage-master met his death while trying to push the women off the track on which the eastbound express was running.

Gives Up Important Position.

New York, April 18.—Edward F. Croker, nephew of Richard Croker and head of the New York fire department for the past twelve years, has resigned for the ostensible reason of going into business for himself. Fire Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo accepted the resignation with expressions of regret and informed the chief that he would be put on the department list of pensioners with an annual income of $6,000.

APPLE CULTURE.

Jackson County is located in the most promising fruit belt in Indiana. Such at least is the opinion of men who make the cultivation of fruit orchards a specialty. Our farmers are just awakening to the possibilities which apple culture on a large scale offers to them. The demonstration given by Purdue last year at the Stanfield orchard, now the Jackson orchard, east of Seymour, opened the eyes of everyone who visited the orchard in the fall to the great advantage there is in properly caring for the trees. The marked contrast between the trees which were cared for and those which received no attention was so clear that the rows which were not treated could be detected long before the orchard was reached. The neglected trees had a large proportion of poor knotty fruit and lost their foliage early in the fall while the trees which received attention retained their foliage and the apples were well developed, even the smallest ones being free from defects.

This year our farmers are giving considerable attention to the treatment of their trees while in bloom and are planning to carry the spraying and other cultivation necessary through the spring season. This will eventually result in a marked improvement in the quality of the product which the trees yield. The Eber-lee Company of this city, is taking considerable pains and expense to furnish information to farmers who desire it relative to the proper methods of caring for their trees. Being large buyers and shippers of apples it is to their interest to have the quality of apples in this community at as high a standard as possible and their work along with the general interest which the farmers themselves are taking will doubtless result in a very great improvement in the apples raised in this county during the next few years.

The time is rapidly coming when in farming as in every other business, the man who makes the largest success must specialize and the man who specializes with fruit will make no mistake we feel sure in beginning now a systematic plan that will yield large returns in years to come. The only disadvantage of fruit culture is the series of years after a new orchard is set out before returns can be secured, but when the returns do come they will amply repay the years of waiting and care which the orchard requires.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

Are tonic in action, quick in results. A special medicine for all kidney and bladder disorders. Mrs. Annie She-walter, Wabash, Ind., says, "Last winter I suffered a great deal from a severe backache which was due to kidney trouble. However, one bottle of Foley Kidney Pills entirely relieved me and I have never been bothered since. I can recommend Foley Kidney Pills to anyone suffering in this way as a quick and permanent cure." A. J. Pellens.

Hints For the Farmer.

In the north it is hardly safe to plant cucumbers until the middle or last of May. The crop may be planted even as late as the latter part of June.

Nitrogen is by far the most important element in producing a crop of cabbage. It should be quickly available. Top dressing with nitrate of soda is becoming more and more common. Try it on the early crop.

Spring is the ideal time for germinating all seeds. The ground is in mellow and fine tilth after the winter freezing and full of moisture. This applies especially to fine seeds and delicate plants like the alfalfa.

A spring tooth harrow should seldom if ever be used after plowing sod land unless stones are troublesome. The results are much better when a good disk or spading harrow is used alternately with a drag or a float.

By spraying alone many of the old apple orchards which have never borne a crop can be made very profitable. These should be sprayed when the blossoms show a little pink and again as soon as the fruit has set, with a third spraying about two weeks later.

There is no reason why anybody should have trouble in growing strawberries. With any ordinary, good garden soil placed where both the air and water drainage are good the strawberry will thrive, provided it gets only ordinary cultural care at the important times of its life.

There will be a called meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Allen Swope.

ATTRACTIVE AND NOVEL EXTERIOR.

Design 849, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This exterior is very much out of the ordinary, its attractiveness due to the novel treatment of roofs. The piazza walls are of brick, the house of frame. A pretty color combination would be a brown body, moss green roof, white sash and red brick for the piazza. The interior arrangement combines all the conveniences found in the modern home. Birch floors are used throughout, oak finish in the living room, dining room and hall, and birch in the kitchen and second story. Size of house 33 by 27 feet over the main part. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $4,150.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 849 for $25.

CLEARING LOGGED OFF LANDS

Char Pit Method Recommended Highly by Washington Professor.

That logged off lands can be cleared of stumps, removing roots to a depth below the reach of a plow, and at a cost of less than 50 cents a stump has been demonstrated by the experiments of Professor H. W. Sparks of the state college at Pullman, Wash.

Professor Sparks' successful experiments have been with the char pit method. Once understood this method is the most simple and inexpensive that can be imagined. A little fire, a little clayey earth and a little watchfulness are the essentials in the process by the combination of which the most hopeless looking stumpy acreage can be prepared for the plow in the course of two weeks.

The char pit method is simply an adaptation of the old and well known method of making charcoal by burning in closed pits. It depends for its efficiency on concentration of heat. A ring of loose wood, bark, etc., is first laid all the way round the stump and as close to it as possible, and this is then covered to a depth of about six inches with earth, leaving a small opening in the direction from which the wind is blowing. The wood is then lighted at this point and left for about half an hour, until the fire is well started, when this hole is then covered up like the rest. As the fire burns back into the stump the blanket of earth must be kept right up to the stump so that the fire never has an opportunity to break out. The top of the stump doesn't burn, but is simply cut off cleanly at a point about level with the top of the earthen blanket. When the top has been cut off by the fire and rolls off the whole crown of the stump should be covered with earth and can then be left without much further attention until the roots have been burned out. This is sometimes done to a depth of fifteen feet or more.

The length of time required to destroy the stump depends on what kind of wood it is and whether green, dry or rotten. The most stubborn stumps will disappear in two weeks at the most, while many are done away with in three or four days. The record of Professor Sparks' experiment shows an average cost of between 40 and 50 cents a stump. In some of these he has used fuel oil and coal tar.

The experiments which have so far been successful have been with clay soil. This, baked and hardened by the fire, conserves the highest degree of heat. Sandy or stony soil sifts in and puts out the fire or permits it to spread. Professor Sparks is now working out certain theories by which he expects to perfect a similar method adapted to other soils than clay.

A Good Word For Buckwheat.

No crop will bring in better returns in the northern states for the time it occupies the ground than buckwheat. It is put in after all other crops have been planted and are growing. It is the best grain to raise to subdue a patch of troublesome weeds and to starve out worms in the soil. It also comes handy to sow on vacant pieces of ground which have been left because too late to be sown to some other crop. It is also a valuable crop to plow under to enrich the soil and give humus.

Where Apples Should Be Grown.

An orchard site should be on the best land on the farm, land that may be cultivated, as only under the most thorough tillage of the soil may the best apples be grown. Such apples as the best trade in our cities demands. The higher elevations are better than the valleys.

THIS WEEK

Is the Time For the Spraying of Orchards.

The following article written by F. H. Simpson, manager of the Ebner plant at Flora, Ill., shows that this is a very important week for owners of orchards:

One of the most important sprays for the apple orchard should be applied this week. This spray is for the prevention of apple scab, a fungus growth that perhaps causes as much damage to fruit as all other pests combined. It causes a large per cent. of the bloom and young apples to drop and its work in most cases is not recognized by the grower, as the result of the apple scab.

He simply passes up the condition as one which he does not know the cause and does not realize that a little preparation and work, he can prevent this drop and secure a good crop of fruit.

There are two very important reasons for making this application this week, while the bloom buds are showing a little red. First, to insure a set of fruit and second, to insure clean foliage upon which to work with the later sprays.

Either the Bordeaux mixture (3 pounds coppersulphate, 4 pounds lime and 50 gallons water) and 2 pounds arsenate lead, or two gallon lime sulphur and 2 pounds arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water, may be used, and which ever you may decide to use, see that the work is thorough. Better waste one half of the material rather than miss some part of the tree. When the bloom comes out full, operations should cease until petals have dropped, but don't miss this spray before the bloom comes out.

Charles Rockstroh went to Brownstown this morning on business.

THE DEALS

By Which the Park Land Became City's Property.

During the controversy over the city park track, the statement has been frequently made that the park land was given to the city for park purposes only and if used for any purpose there was a possibility of its reverting to the Shields heirs. The records at the court house have been examined and they disclose the fact that the land was deeded to the city without any strings attached to it. The city, according to the consideration named in the deeds, paid $8,000 for the land. Park bonds were issued to meet the purchase price and the last of them were paid off about twelve years ago.

In the partition of the Meda W. Shields estate, part of the park land was set off to Mrs. A. W. Dickinson and the remainder to William H. Shields. The deed to the former's part of the land was given in 1891, the price being $5,500 while W. H. Shields made a deed for his part in 1885 receiving $2,500.

One or more crews of the B. & O. S-W., have been let out this week on account of work being slack.

A Romance of Drussenland

CHAPTER X.

HAD put everything upon the hazard of a die, and kneeling, I awaited the result. There was absolute silence—it seemed to me for a long time—and I could feel that the chamber was charged with an atmosphere of expectancy. At such a moment one takes in many things at a glance. Count Vasca was furious. I saw a curious smile wrinkle the corners of Jasar's mouth, and, although I did not understand its meaning, there was in it something which encouraged me. I was conscious that Lady Aldrida stepped back from me, a movement that indeed suggested fear at my rashness.

I saw the princess start, and then the color dyed her cheeks deeply, but there was no encouragement in her face. For one moment it seemed as if she remembered the giving of the handkerchief, but the next she was stern, resolute, and I might have been some poor devil craving mercy for myself. Her eyes flashed dangerously, her mouth tightened hard and unforgettingly, her bosom rose and fell in quick movement, telling of a passionate anger which she held in check. She looked superb, but less a woman than I had ever seen her look. Just then she would have inspired fear, but hardly love, I think. My sudden action seemed to have put the key of the situation into my hand for the moment, but her dignity and self-possession snatched it from me. Then she spoke clearly, calmly.

"A token must be given to make it of any worth. This handkerchief, as we remember, was merely forgotten when, as a stranger among us, we gave you a word of sympathy. Had we known the use you intended to put it to we should have sent a servant to reclaim it. Never has any subject received a token of ours. You forget yourself, Sir Verrall, and in future we shall know how to treat you. It were well to absent yourself from our presence until we have forgotten the insult."

Then, turning to one of her women, she commanded her to take the handkerchief. Those about me bowed low as the princess passed from the room followed by her attendants.

Not until the curtains had fallen behind her did I rise from my knee. It was not homage which kept me there. I wanted a moment to think. I believed myself something of a martyr for the cause of humanity. I had done the wretched prisoners no good, but I had made the attempt, and since it had failed I should have more enemies in Drussenland than I had ever had before.

Jasar had gone. Vasca was leaving the apartment hurriedly, and those standing near me drew back as I crossed the room.

At the entrance Lady Aldrida stopped me.

"We attempted the impossible, Sir Verrall. I warned you that I was in no great favor with her highness."

"We have done what we could," I answered. "Take heed to yourself, Lady Aldrida. It is ill policy to sympathize with a fallen and disgraced man."

"That man is my—"

"Is a fool, my lady," I interrupted. "I am in no mood for talking of it now."

She dropped me a low courtesy, and I went quickly through the other rooms, neither being spoken to nor speaking to any.

As I was leaving the palace, however, a hand was laid upon my shoulder, and I turned to face a friend, a knight who had ever taken part with me against my enemies.

"Sir Verrall, let me come with you."

"I warn you I am poor company tonight," I answered.

"Two swords are better than one when the night is dark and the attack sudden and from behind."

"Why should you fear attack tonight?"

"The town is full of drunken soldiers, and a fallen man is food for any assassin's dagger. The murderer may be thanked for getting rid of so turbulent a subject—or thinks he may."

I laughed at his somber foreboding, but I was not ill pleased to have his company. His presence may have protected me, I do not know, but I reached my quarters in safety.

O'Ryan was not there. I guessed that the attractions of the town had proved too much for him tonight, and I was not sorry to be alone. I crossed the room and looked out upon the market place. The sounds of merry-making run to riot rose up to me. The dawn would bring the chanting priests, the flashing swords and the stakes with their ghastly burdens. What could I do more to prevent the butchery? Nothing—absolutely nothing. I had played my trump card and lost.

Not only had I not helped the prisoners, but I had put my own life in jeopardy. I had no mercy to hope for from the princess, and I could not expect the priests to raise a finger in my protection now that I had attempted to wreck one of their dearest laws. Should I go to the priests and, playing upon their superstition, command them to save their prisoners? Should I steal out, mount my horse, ride to Yadasara and proffer my services to lead the king's troops to victory against their enemies? Should I go back to the palace and attempt to speak again with the princess? And then, I regret to say, I wondered if the lives of these prisoners were worth the sacrifice I had made for them, whether I should not have been wiser to take O'Ryan's advice and look after my own skin.

Presently I realized that the town had grown quieter. Listening for O'Ryan, I heard something else—stealthy footsteps coming along the corridor. Under the circumstances it was not strange that I should think of treachery. I drew my sword noiselessly and waited. There was a quick knock at my door.

"Who comes at so late an hour?" I said, throwing the door open and ready to defend myself.

"Welcome you all your friends so, Sir Verrall?"

It was Jasar, and he smiled as he pointed to my drawn sword.

"I expected a foe."

"And perhaps with reason," he said. "Still, I come as a friend and secretly. Close the door and make it fast and let us speak low. Your servant has not returned?"

"No."

"And will not tonight. He was found brawling in the streets and was arrested."

"I thought soldiers were privileged to brawl tonight," I said.

"Some—not all."

"You mean that only my servant was arrested?"

He bowed and watched me with a smile upon his face, even as he had watched me as I pleaded to the princess.

"By Vasca's orders, doubtless?"

"Doubtless."

"Ah, for a few moments with him to settle our score now and for all time!" I said impatiently.

"What can you expect? A fallen man is ever a stepping stone which others use to rise to higher favor."

"Fallen, you say! It is too rash an assertion. Falling, perhaps, but not fallen. When Sir Verrall completely falls he'll carry some ruin with him."

"Brave words—an idle boast I should have said had another uttered them. But Sir Verrall has proved himself as good as his words. Tell me, are all men as you are in the land you come from?"

"I am but a poor specimen of my countrymen," I answered. And then I stopped, remembering how I had come to Drussenland as the long expected knight.

"We must talk of that another time," he answered, with a smile. "Now we have other matters in hand. You are right, Sir Verrall. You have not fallen yet, but there are those who think you have."

"You mean"—I began.

"Mark you, Sir Verrall, you were unwise tonight."

"To plead for those wretched prisoners?"

"No. For that I honor you. It was the action of a true knight. The law is a disgrace. I quarrel not with your pleading, but with the manner of it."

"It was the only way."

"There you are in error," he answered. "First you should have come alone. To associate Lady Aldrida with the request was to court failure. Then you should not have asked for an immediate answer. Her highness cannot make and break laws at her pleasure. Your importunity made her resist you."

"Made her doubt my loyalty," I said bitterly. "Had a man so accused me I would have cut out his lying tongue."

"You gave the challenge, Sir Verrall, and since none dared to answer it you had the advantage. But you did not use it. You turned to sneer at the princess. Think you any woman can bear that?"

"My knowledge of women is limited."

"True, I have found it so. You should learn to read women, Sir Verrall, and then you would know how to use your advantage. The princess, after all, is a woman."

I looked at him, trying to discover a deep meaning in his words, but Jasar's face was not easy to read.

"I used the weapons to my hand," I said.

"And used them badly—your last weapon worst of all. It was bravely done, but it was madness just then."

"I am no courtier where the lives of men are at stake."

"When you should be the courtier most. Yet you do yourself an injustice. I marked you play the courtier well enough to the Lady Aldrida, and the princess saw it also. I can read on the Lady Aldrida's face what the man who whispers to her talks of. I saw well that you talked of love."

"And if I did?"

"Was it wise, think you, to produce the princess' token when you had proved how lightly you esteemed it?"

This was an argument I could not find a ready answer to without showing this priest, of whose friendship I had no guarantee, that I thought more of the princess than I cared to acknowledge.

"She denied the gift," he went on. "She could truly do so, for I saw the manner in which it was given. You could expect nothing else but her anger and the banishment she pronounced."

"I have fought and lost, as many another man has done before me."

"You have not lost yet, Sir Verrall. I was tonight sent to the priests by her highness. The sacrifice of the prisoners is delayed for the present."

"Thank heaven!" I exclaimed.

"So far you have succeeded. It is possible—nay, probable—that the princess will send for you. Be humble; it will serve you best. Of my coming here you must not speak."

"I thank you for coming."

"For the present the prisoners are safe. You may save them altogether, but in doing so you must be content to put yourself in danger. I know not how her highness will treat you, whether she will forgive you or no, but of this I warn you—if you save the prisoners the priests will be your enemies. They are powerful—more powerful even than Count Vasca to do you harm. I know you to be fearless; I believe you to be true. But mark well how you go after sunset. And one more thing, Sir Verrall—make not other enemies. A foe in steel or even in priestly robes may be met and conquered, but a woman—she has weapons that a man is ill fitted to guard against. I seek no confidence; I only advise. Beware of the Lady Aldrida. There is a whole armory of danger in that fair woman."

"You wrong her. I dare swear that you wrong her."

She had stood by me. I could do no less than protect her.

"I have given my advice," he said calmly. "It is for you to use it or not, as you will. Good night. When I am gone make fast the door again. For you danger lurks in every shadow. At some other time we will talk of that country of yours. It should be a good land and whose knights are fearless and true and yet gentle as you are, Sir Verrall—a good land, indeed."

BLACK KNOT.

One of the Worst and Most Common of Cherry and Plum Diseases.

Black knot of plums and cherries is one of the most common and destructive of the plant diseases affecting our orchard trees. It is marked by large black swellings or knots appearing on the limbs of certain varieties of cherries and plums. In some sections this disease is exceedingly common and destructive. It is caused by a fungus living as a parasite in the bark and wood of the plum or cherry. This fungus reproduces itself and spreads by means of spores which are carried by the wind and lodge in the crevices of the bark or on the buds, where they germinate, penetrate the living bark and by their presence and growth irritate the cambium, the growing part of the limb. The plant responds to this irritation by the increased growth of this part at the point affected, which eventually results

BLACK KNOT.

[From circular Virginia agricultural experiment station.]

In the black knots so characteristic of the disease. It takes approximately two years for the fungus to complete its development in the tree—that is, from the time the spores first lodge on the twig until the knots have matured and their last crop of spores has been distributed, says H. H. Whetzel, plant pathologist, writing in the Rural New Yorker.

The period of infection—that is, the time when the tree may take the disease—is probably from May to July. The knots do not appear on the limbs until the following spring, when in the month of April or May they burst forth and in June become covered with a green felt upon which are produced great numbers of summer spores or conidia. These are scattered by the wind and produce new infections in June and July. The knots then gradually become black in color and in March or April of the second year produce another set of spores in minute pockets all over the surface of the knots. These so called winter spores are distributed in May or June, causing another new set of infections. It is thus evident that the knot may cause new infections for two years in succession. These knots are not caused by insects, as is very often supposed.

The most satisfactory means of controlling this disease consists of a surgical operation—namely, removal of all limbs and twigs bearing knots, cutting at least three or four inches below the knot in every case. The proper time for cutting out the knots is early in the spring, say not later than May, and again in the fall as soon as the leaves are off the trees.

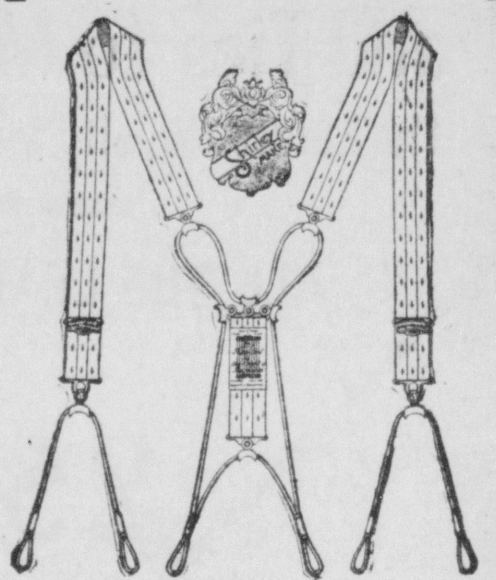

Permanent relief from the trouble cannot be expected unless an effort is made to eradicate the disease from the entire neighborhood, at least for considerable distances in the direction of the prevailing winds. Old cherry and plum trees should be very carefully pruned out and put in shape or else cut down and destroyed. All knots should be burned promptly after cutting from the tree.

Selecting Seed Wheat.

According to the Kansas wheat growers, the idea that large kernels of wheat germinate better than small ones is a mistake. The germinating power is, rather, dependent on the density of the kernels.

When you take an inventory of the farm do not fail to make note of its healthful surroundings and its attractive features for a happy home.

MY DOCTOR MIGHTY FINE

Mrs. Hattie Cain of Carrsville
Thinks all the More of Her
Doctor Since He Advised
Her to Take Cardui.

Carrsville, Ky.—"My doctor," writes Mrs. Hattie Cain, "who advised me to take Cardui, for my troubles, is a mighty fine doctor, and I say God bless Cardui and the people who make it.

"Before I took Cardui, I suffered with female troubles for sixteen years. I would have to send for a doctor every three months, and oh! how dreadfully I suffered!

"I would cramp and have convulsions and it looked like I would die. At last I took Cardui and oh! what a surprise! I found it was the medicine for me!

"From the first bottle, I began to mend and now I am well, can do more work, can walk and go where I please and it don't hurt me, and I owe it all to Cardui."

Cardui helps sick women back to health. It has been doing this for over 50 years. It is not a laxative, or a heart or kidney medicine—it is a woman's medicine.

If you are a woman, try it.

MARY LYON—Forerunner of higher education for women.

Born Buckland, Mass., Feb. 28, 1797; died South Hadley, Mass., on March 5, 1849. She was a teacher for many years and in 1830 conceived the idea of a permanent seminary for girls. This was received coldly, and she next proposed an institution which should give a thorough education to girls of moderate means, the plan being to divide household tasks among all the students in such ways that they would not interfere with school duties. This proposal was received with enthusiasm, money was raised and the Mount Holyoke seminary was started, of which Miss Lyon was made the head for the rest of her life.

CALLS COLUMBUS A FOURFLUSHER

Muckraker Vignaud Thus Brands
Discoverer of America.

STUDIED CASE FIFTY YEARS.

Declares Columbus Learned of the Existence of America From an Ignorant Sailor Who Had Been There Ahead of Him—Makes a Bitter Attack on the Explorer.

Two volumes of a work by Henry Vignaud, first secretary of the American embassy, at Paris, in which the discoverer of America is branded an impostor and a humbug, have just been published.

Vignaud retired from the American embassy two years ago and has since devoted his entire time to the completion of a study of Columbus which has consumed in all fifty years. The author is now eighty years of age. He is celebrated as a historian and was consulted recently by the pope when it was proposed to canonize Columbus. At that time Vignaud showed that the explorer was anything but a saintly man and that he had at least one illegitimate son.

Took Credit From Another.

In his study of Columbus Vignaud undertakes to prove that the explorer's discovery of America was not the result of his own genius, that the expedition was not based upon scientific data, but that Columbus actually learned of the existence of America from an ignorant sailor who had been there ahead of him—in a word, that America was discovered long before Columbus ever organized his expedition and that he merely took the credit from another man unknown to history.

The story that Toscanelli wrote a letter to Columbus inclosing a chart showing the route across the Atlantic and that it was with this in hand that Columbus started out to find the new world is disposed of by Mr. Vignaud. He declares that the Toscanelli letter was a forgery perpetrated possibly by Columbus himself, but more probably by the explorer's brother, Bartholomew Columbus.

A Forged Letter.

Vignaud says that in 1871 a copy of the forged letter was found on a blank page of a book once the explorer's property. This is undoubtedly in Columbus' writing, says Vignaud. A facsimile of the document is published in Vignaud's work. Vignaud further undertakes to prove that the map used by Columbus could not have come from Toscanelli because it contained exact information which no amount of scientific thinking could have adduced, but which could only have been learned from actual experience.

Vignaud says that Columbus not infrequently acted in a manner which renders it possible to suspect him of deception. He says the explorer concealed the lowliness of his origin; that he boasted that he was descended from other admirals of the name of Columbus, though it has been discovered that the men in question were not even of his nationality, one being a Greek and the other a Frenchman; that he boasted of having served under King Rene of Anjou, while modern critics prove that he did not; that he often referred to the voyages he made in his youth, while facts show the statements to be wholly untrue.

PLATINUM THE THING.

Its Use as Fashionable Metal Dictated by Jewelers.

An edict of the National Wholesale Jewelers' association names platinum as the precious metal upon which men and women of wealth shall hereafter lavish their surplus cash.

Platinum, which is more rare and expensive than gold, has heretofore been used chiefly for expensive diamond settings. Henceforth it is to be used in all kinds of smaller articles, such as stickpins and studs for men and earrings, brooches, rings, chains and bracelets for women. Hard platinum costs wholesale $42 and the soft variety costs from $38 to $40 an ounce. The retail price ranges from $52 to $60 an ounce. This makes the new metal especially desirable, according to the jewelers, as it is calculated to be almost, if not quite, beyond the reach of persons of ordinary means.

DRYDOCK FOR WHALES.

Device Is to Be Used For Keeping Carcasses Afloat After Capture.

The only known "drydock for whales" has been ordered built at the Western Boat works, Long Beach, Cal., and Captain E. E. Dodge, proprietor of the boat works, is hauling from San Pedro 35,000 feet of lumber, which will be required to build the barge. It will be 30 by 70 feet in size and will cost $2,500.

"I am to build the barge for J. D. Loop, launch owner and whale hunter," said Captain Dodge. "He calls it a drydock for whales. I understand he will use it to buoy up whales that he may capture in the future as well as use it for a landing at the side of big ships which may anchor in the bay."

LATE BLIGHT OF CELERY.

Methods Found Efficacious In California In Dealing With Disease.

According to the College of Agriculture of California, the celery blight is one of the many fungous diseases which may be controlled by spraying with bordeaux mixture.

Based on the results of investigation by a California expert, the following spraying scheme is recommended:

The formula for bordeaux should be five pounds of bluestone, six pounds of stone lime and fifty gallons of water. When the plants are small thirty to forty gallons of bordeaux per acre are sufficient, but the amount should be increased at each application, so that when the plants are fifteen or more inches high the spray is put on at the rate of not less than 100 gallons per acre.

Spray seed beds at least twice, especially if grown on soil which produced blighted celery the preceding year.

After plants are transplanted into the field spraying should begin when the first blight is noticed. In any event the first spraying should be given not later than six weeks after transplanting, and one application a month should be given until the seasonal rain or heavy fog comes.

After the rains have set in spray every two weeks if possible until the crop is harvested.

Where the plants are over fifteen inches tall they should be gone over twice at each spraying, the machine moving in the opposite direction the second time.

Upon the carefulness and thoroughness of the spraying is dependent to a large extent the successful control of the blight.

Demonstration plots sprayed by the experimenter according to the above scheme came through the season in first class shape and were almost entirely free from blight at harvest time.

Farming is a manufacturing business, and costs of production must be calculated as carefully as in any other business.

Look Out For Cabbage Flies.

Lettuce, radishes and onions will require careful watching in early spring to prevent the ravages of cabbage flies. They are so small as to easily escape notice, and the first suspicion of their presence will be the disappearance of the young plants just as they are nicely started. Dusting liberally with soot, wood ashes or air slaked lime will prevent their work, but it should be done as soon as the plants appear above ground.

Fertilizing the Muskmelon.

The New Jersey experiment station secured an increase in yield of 115 per cent by the use of 150 to 200 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre. Half the fertilizer was applied at planting time about the hills and worked into the soil and the remainder about three weeks later. Dried blood and sulphate of ammonia used in the same manner were a little less effective, but increased the yield from 87 to 91 per cent.

There should be a good reason for everything done on the farm, and things that are unreasonable should not be done. Whenever superstition is banished and systematic thinking takes the place of "moon farming" farm progress will begin.

Oilmeal For Live Stock.

Oil cake or oilmeal in proper quantities is considered by our best stockmen to be one of the most healthful foods that is on the market, states Professor Humphrey of the University of Wisconsin.

Look After the Plow.

What is the condition of the plow? Has it been properly protected this winter, and is it in good condition for plowing when needed? A plow that will not scour is an abomination.

THE GOBLINS OF COLOGNE.

Long ago in the Rhine city of Cologne lived some good natured goblins that now and then appeared to mortal eyes and were always trying to make happier the troubled lives of human beings. In the grove and woodland caverns they had handsome homes of their own, wherein they dwelt and watched over the great treasures of the mines of the earth. Not infrequently these kindly elves were busy miners, and sometimes they were skillful artisans. As everybody knows, 'twas they who manufactured the precious trinkets and arms of the Nibelung treasure.

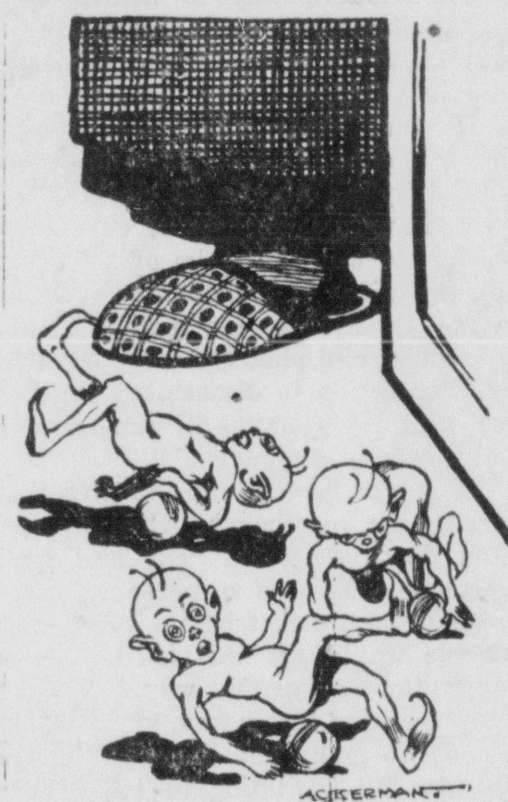

Way down deep in the heart of the earth they lived together happily, and a king ruled over them.

Nevertheless the goblins did not stay underground all the time. On the contrary, frequently they came to the surface of the earth through certain holes which the people of the neighborhood called "goblin holes." Always, however, they took care never to meet human beings.

These merry little fellows were of different sizes. Some of them were no bigger than one's thumb. Others were as large as the hand of a child four years old.

Now, in the time of our story there lived in the beautiful city of Cologne a host of these friendly dwarfs, and the honest townspeople had many a tale to tell about them. Workmen and artisans especially gained through help of the friendly wights many more holidays than the calendar marked down for them.

For example, when the carpenters would throw themselves back on their benches for a snooze these little men

THE LITTLE MEN SLIPPED ON THE PEAS, came along swiftly and steadily, took up the neglected tools and worked away with a will, chiseling, sawing and hammering, so that by the time the carpenters woke up again their task was well half finished.

No less did the cooper enjoy, and the tailor even had no cause to complain of their neglecting him.

Indeed, the story goes that it was through a tailor or, rather, through his wife that the city of Cologne lost the help of the friendly dwarfs. This is the way that it came about:

Mr. Cotton, the best tailor in the city, was honored by an order to make a Sunday coat for the mayor of the town. Diligently he worked at his task; but, as you could easily understand, in the heat of the afternoon he presently began to nod and nod, the needle dropped from his hand, and he fell fast asleep. Hark! What sound is that? Look there! One little goblin after another crept cautiously from his nook in the tailor shop, where he hid himself away when there was anybody by to see. All the little goblins climbed on the table and began to do the tailor's work. Clever little goblins that they were, they sewed and stitched and fitted and pressed as if they had been sewing for a tailor all their lives, so that when Master Cotton awoke by and by, to his great surprise and joy, he found the mayor's Sunday coat already made and so neatly finished that he could present the handsome garment to his own with justifiable pride.

But Mr. Cotton's pretty wife smiled to herself as she saw this masterpiece of her husband's art. She thought she knew how the work had been done so quickly, and she made up her mind to find out.

That night when her husband was sound asleep she slipped out of bed without making any noise and scattered peas all over the floor of the workshop. Then she put on the table a half finished suit. All the time she carried a small lantern hidden under her apron. She took her place behind the door and stood there listening.

It wasn't long before the workshop was full of little men all tumbling and falling and slipping over the peas. Little voices screamed and yelled, for the poor little goblins were all of them bruised and many of them were hurt. They didn't wait a minute, but ran downstairs as fast as they could and left the tailor's house.

The tailor's wife, hiding behind the door, heard the noise and thought it all fine fun. The clamor grew, and she thought she would open the door quickly and see the goblin visitors, but she was just too late. They had all gone. Not a single one was left behind.

And never since then have the friendly dwarfs helped the people of Cologne, and now they have even disappeared from other places.—Chicago Tribune.

SOLID BASIS FOR MAKERS

Auto Manufacturer Predicts Better Stability in Future for Trade.

"The future promises a very satisfactory and prosaic stability in the automobile business," declares Geo. M. Dickson, general manager of the National Motor Vehicle Company, one of the oldest motor car manufacturing concerns in the country. "From now on brains, integrity and experience will count to the same degree that it does in the planola, sealskin coat or any other business which caters to those persons whose incomes enable them to purchase articles costing several hundred dollars and upward."

"The mushroom period of the motor car game, with the great experimental stage, is now passing and another few months will witness the general introduction of legitimate and unsensational methods which have characterized the efforts of the best known motor makers from the beginning. The change which is now being consummated will see a general betterment of conditions from both the viewpoint of the maker and the dealer."

"There has been a glamour about the automobile 'game' which is disappearing with the establishment of the automobile 'industry.' In a few years the man working with the motor car will be no more a person to be envied than the man selling beans or shoes. It is true that millions have been made in the automobile business by a few persons who started with almost nothing. On the other hand, millions have been lost by people who started with large sums."

"One big improvement in the business will be the protection of the parts and accessory maker. During the past few months these concerns have suffered through the failure of numerous manufacturing plants promoted by men who would have failed in most any business."

"The parts maker will also doubtless suffer a good deal by the large manufacturing plants making practically all of their own parts. The credit of surviving firms will be established and the public in general will profit as much by the improvement as the people in the trade."

The National Company has three big cars entered in the $25,000 500-mile International Sweepstakes race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway next Memorial Day.

"FLYING DUTCHMAN" READY

Joe Jagersburger to Pilot Fast Case Race Autos in Indianapolis.

Joseph Jagersburger, "The Flying Dutchman," is the third Case racing team driver to be entered in the 500-mile International Sweepstakes race for a purse of $25,000 over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Memorial Day, May 30, and the ninth entrant for that event. Jagersburger has been a strong contender in many of the big speed events of the country and has shown himself a fearless driver behind the wheel. He is a team mate of Louis Larson and Lewis Strang, the latter being captain and manager of the team.

Jagersburger is a native of Vienna, Austria. He first came to America in 1902, when he left C. L. Charley, with whom he had been demonstrating the Mercedes car in Paris for two years preceding. Leaving Paris, he came to America with Mr. Harry Harkness, the New York multi-millionaire sportsman.

During the year 1903 Jagersburger handled the racing machines of Mr. Harkness. His most notable performance was at Elkwood Park on the 4th of July, 1903, when he made the American 100-mile track record. This performance was so good that it withstood the attacks of all other record-breaking drivers for a period of three years. George Robertson, the famous American driver and afterwards winner of the Vanderbilt Cup race, rode with Jagersburger in this race as his mechanic. This was smiling George Robertson's baptism in the auto racing game.

Birthday Surprise.

Mrs. John M. Sheron planned and carried out a delightful surprise for her mother, Mrs. Ida Miller, of North Chestnut street Monday evening. The affair was in honor of Mrs. Miller's birthday. The members of the Wednesday Afternoon Thimble Club were the guests and they presented Mrs. Miller with a beautiful hand-painted plate. Refreshments were served and the evening was very pleasantly spent. In departing the guests wished Mrs. Miller many more years of health and happiness.

SAVED SELF AND DAUGHTER

Mattoon, Ill.—"Will you allow me for the benefit of others who may be in the same condition as I was to make a statement in this paper.

"I was in very poor health for years, was weak, ailing, and all run-down, and had lost in weight until I only weighed ninety pounds. I had been under a physician's care, without any benefit, for so long I was discouraged.

About a year ago I decided to try a tonic called Vinol, concerning which I had heard many favorable reports. I commenced to gain, and increased in weight until I now weigh 127 pounds, am in perfect health—and never felt better in my life.

Then, my daughter who lived in Martinsville, Ind. was an invalid, and no encouragement was held out for her recovery. After my experience with Vinol, we went to Martinsville and brought her to Mattoon, as she was helpless. When we got her here I put her on Vinol, with the same good results from it's use which I had—she gained in weight, and today she is well and strong and feels better than she ever did in her life." Mrs. O. M. Watrous. (We guarantee this letter is genuine.)

We have for years recommended Vinol as a grand tonic and body-builder, and every year we gain more and more faith in its wonderful virtues. It is certainly the best and simplest tonic restorative we know of. The Andrews Drug Co.

Union Missionary Meeting.

Thursday afternoon, April 20th, the missionary societies of the Methodist church will entertain all the missionary societies of Seymour at the church at 230. J. H. Matlock attended the largest Sunday School in the world Easter. It is the Methodist School at Brazil, Rev. E. C. Waring, who is Mr. Matlock's son-in-law, being the pastor of the church. The attendance Sunday was 2,200 and a collection of $2,800 for church benevolences was taken. It was the 25th anniversary of Supt. Carpenter's work as head of the school. The enrollment of the latter is now 4,700 and the members are pushing for 5,000. A picture of the school appeared in The Indianapolis News Saturday evening.

A costly wreck for the B. & O. Southwestern occurred early Sunday morning at Lawrenceville, Illinois. Engine 1590, a freight engine, ran into the rear end of engine 2041 which was switching at Lawrenceville and both engines were badly damaged. They were wedged together so tightly that two other engines, one coupled to each of the disabled engines, could not pull them apart. The track was cleared without much delay for the freight or passenger traffic. No one was injured.

When school closed at Greasy Creek recently the teacher, Miss Arvilla Rink, was given a pleasant surprise by the patrons. At noon the latter, to the number of 96 people, went to the school house with baskets well filled. After a splendid dinner the company was entertained by the school with songs, recitations, plays and dialogues. Quite a number of persons from outside the neighborhood were present, including Mrs. John Gosset and children, of Seymour, Mrs. Clarence Goss, Misses Iva Goen and Bertha Bland, of Brownstown, Mrs. Cyrus Rink, of Vallonia, Misses Mary and Frances Booker, of Sparksville, and Mrs. David Colbourn or Pea Ridge.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING.Concerning Nature's Aid to Health—

This is an age of progress in the world of medicine as well as in arts and science. Old customs, old habits, old modes of life are giving way to new to keep pace with the march of progress.

Men of science are no longer hesitating to denounce the false theories of the past. Inventor, Edison, the electrical "wizard," among other things, says:

"Medicine is played out. The doctor of the future will give no medicine, but will instruct his patient in the care of the human frame, in diet, and in the cause and prevention of disease."

These are strong words, and in the main an endorsement of osteopathy. Edison's position is one worthy of investigation by all seekers of health.

That the people are doing their own thinking now more than ever before is self evident. In no age has non-medical methods of treatment been so prominent. Even physicians themselves are quietly abandoning the use of drug remedies. This is the most remarkable testimonial that osteopathy is the latest and best method of healing and that prejudice should not keep the afflicted from giving it a trial.

It has been demonstrated that a thing may be both new and true. A description of an automobile would have shocked the wise men of long ago. Why not improve upon old methods of healing as well as upon old ways of locomotion?

The modern way to health discards drug medication, and we commend it to all well-informed, thinking people. Overwhelming proof prevails that osteopathy cures where other methods fail. It has been tested by all classes of people and tried in untold numbers of cases until its place in the realm of scientific therapeutics is abundantly proven to be superior to old methods. Its principles and philosophy are capable of illustration in disease, as are the rules of mathematics in numbers, or of forces in mechanics.

It is worth your while to give this matter serious thought when disease and death defy old "cut and try" methods. This is a personal message to you, sick friend. Many sick people would get well if they only knew the osteopathic way, which is the surer and better way, yet it is unknown to many and there can be no reason for hesitating to tell others about it because its great principles concern our well being so much here and now.

Osteopathic ideas are new and true to nature. It has a new basis, takes new views, pursues new methods and secures new results hitherto unknown. It is not claimed to be a cure-all, yet its scope and range cannot be measured by the failures of other school for it's restoring stubborn, chronic cases that they have abandoned.

Suppose you look into the merits of osteopathy here in Seymour. A trial will convince that most of the common ills of life are seen with a new understanding, treated accordingly, invariably cured or greatly benefited, evidencing that we are finding the keys and opening the seals and coming into possession of the glorious heritage to man-kind—health, and through Nature's own methods.

Rugby Bicycle

Other bicycles may be higher priced but they are not better. The Rugby is a bicycle that can be depended upon. It is made of quality material in every part, and the parts that come in for unusual strain are made so good that they really become the strong points of the machine.

The Rugby shows its quality in the superior finish and its fine lines. The best of all, the Rugby shows quality after long continued service.
